> "We learn that the first case where a white man is the defendant, or accused, under the laws of the new Constitution, has been very unfartunate, and shows the fulfifty of making laws without the proper means of enforcing the penal ties inflicted. It uppears that Mr. Mason, a planter, of Wairiki, wanted some yams for his abovers, and went to a Fijiian's house at Loma Loma to purchase them. As the man was not at home, he took as many as he wan ed, of course tending to pay the market price for them. The Fijiian, on his return, instead of accepting payment, determined to appeal to the newly-made laws. Mr. Muson was fined by the Court three dollars, which he said he would not nay, and violent. After a scene to Court he went to Maafu's private house and told the chief that if he did not order the plaintiff in the suit to be flogged, he would administer personal chastise-ment himself. Maafu was indignant, and pushed Mr Mason out of the house, and thus the matter rests. The whites, generally, are naturally wroth with Mr. Mason for the foolish way in which he has acted, but we have not heard whether they ntend taking any steps to enforce the order of he Court. Lovuka is in a predicament; with a arge population gradually increasing, with places of business in course of erection or contemplaion, with business transactions of all kinds being daily colered into, without any guarantee that either party will fulfill the conditions of such contract, there is great danger of might becoming right and the stigma already cast upon us being

Several attempts have been made heretofore to supply the citizens of Honolulu with ice, none of which have as yet proved successful. The limited quantity needed for such supply renders large importations unadvisable, and the loss from the melting of the small quantities needed has rendered the business, in every instance, so far, an unprofitable one, although the price than is paid for that luxury in any other part of the world. It seems, therefore, that the importation of ice for the use of the public cannot be made profitable to when people become accustomed to it, is made almost a necessity. In certain cases of sickness, and when a person has received. severe and dangerous wounds, the appliion of ice often saves life. We know of one case of the latter, where the careful and humane purveyor of the Queen's Hospital had under his charge a man who had been dangerously stabbed; hemorrhage had set in to the extent that the man's procured to stop the flow of blood. There happened to be at the time a small ice machine in town, which was procured, ice made, and in a few weeks the person was walking the streets a well man. Other cases have occurred where ice has been instrumental in saving life.

It having been demonstrated by experience that the importation of ice for sale here is a losing business, it is, in order to have a supply, necessary to resort to other means to get it; that is to its manufacture, of New Orleans is mainly supplied in this manner. Six machines of the pattern exhibited by M. Carree at the Exposition in Paris in 1867, are used in the production of about sixty tons of ice, and it is produced, at great profit to the Company engaged in the enterprise, for much less than ice frozen in the rivers and ponds of the North can be imported. One such machine would be amply sufficient to supply the demands of Honolulu, and we hope to see some one of our enterprising citizens engaged in the business. There FROM NO. 1 TO 10. can not be much doubt but that the investment in one of these machines would be a paying one, and the regular supply of ice made be a great public benefit. Who'll
